About the Blueprint

The 2025 Federal Policy Blueprint is the foundational, consensus document for the Carbon Capture Coalition (Coalition). It outlines the federal legislative, regulatory, and implementation priorities that more than 100 Coalition members — companies, labor unions, and NGOs—believe are most important to achieving the Coalition’s goal of enabling nationwide deployment of carbon management technologies.

What is the Blueprint?

The 2025 Federal Policy Blueprint outlines for the 119th Congress and the administration a portfolio of necessary legislative, regulatory, and implementation actions to achieve the development, commercial demonstration, and deployment of the full suite of carbon management technologies across sectors.

Developed through a consensus-based process, it represents the views of the more than 100 business, labor, environmental, and conservation NGOs and industry organizations who are members of the Carbon Capture Coalition. It is THE ROADMAP for the continued development and deployment of carbon management technologies in the United States for the next two years.

Why is the Blueprint important?

Carbon management technologies will continue to play an important role in America’s energy strategy in the years ahead. The Carbon Capture Coalition 2025 Federal Policy Blueprint provides the roadmap for the legislative, regulatory, and implementation actions necessary to continue driving the commercial deployment of these technologies over the next decade.

Who developed the Blueprint?

The Blueprint was developed by a diverse cross-section of Coalition membership, reflecting the Coalition’s unique collaboration across companies, labor unions, and conservation and environmental organizations. It is a foundational, consensus-based document for membership that will guide our strategy and efforts over the next two years.

Where can the Blueprint be accessed?

Once published on February 28, 2025, the Blueprint may be downloaded from the Carbon Capture Coalition website at www.carboncapturecoalition.org.

How the Blueprint will be used?

The Blueprint serves as a guidepost for the Carbon Capture Coalition's prioritization and activities for the next two years, and communications efforts. Additionally, agreement with the principles and priorities outlined in the Blueprint is considered a threshold for membership in the Carbon Capture Coalition.
